JACOB APRILL OF SCIO TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN, 1808-1889

By Betty Brandt

The first settlers in the 1820s in Scio Township were easterners from New York State and New England. By the early 1830s the Germans, leaving Germany because of hard times there and attracted by letters and pamphlets offering jobs and land, began to come to America. Some of the earliest of these settlers purchasing land from the government by patent were Conrad Bissinger, Jacob and Johannes Stollsteimer, Peter Shilling, Jacob Gross, Christian Auch, Michael Yager, Jacob Laubengayer, Abraham and John Croman, Jacob Paul, Frederick Kaercher, and Henry Mann. Also among these early families were Jacob Aprill and his wife Magdalena, who were following her brother Johann Martin Snyder (Schnyder) to Scio Township.

Jacob Aprill, the son of Jacob Aprill and Catherine Linger, was born in 1808 in Otisheim, near Stuttgart in the Kingdom of Wurttemberg, and came to Herkimer County in New York about 1829. There he met Magdalena, born in 1805 to Johann Martin Snyder and Magdalena Schaut. They were married in 1832 in the village of Schuyler, Herkimer County, New York. Her family had come from Unterinssingen, Hannberg. Jacob bought land in Section 32 of Scio Township and an adjoining piece in Section 5 of Lodi Township in July of 1833. According to family history they came to Washtenaw County in the spring- perhaps they stayed at first with friends or relatives. Jacob built a log cabin for his family and began to work as a shoemaker, a trade he had learned in Germany. His wife worked with him, and since he was the only shoemaker in the surrounding community they sometimes had to work all night. They worked at that trade for fifteen years. By 1847 Jacob had accumulated over 400 acres of land in Scio and Lodi Townships. The Aprill family lived near the Salem Lutheran Church, in which Jacob and Magdalena were actively involved.

Their first child listed in Pastor Friedrich Schmidt's records died in 1834 as an infant, probably because of the rigorous life they lived in primitive Washtenaw County. Three sons and two daughters were raised to maturity. The eldest, William, was born in 1836, and in 1861 married Mary Keck from a neighboring farm. They had nine children, Jacob F., William, Emanuel, Adolph, Mary, Lydia, Emma, Carrie, and Edward. They lived in a large house on Zeeb Road in Section 34, which has been designated as a Centennial Farm, being in the same family for over one hundred years. William Aprill died in 1913, and Mary Aprill in 1914.

The second son, Jacob, born in 1843, married Agatha Frey. He died in 1880 at age 37, leaving his widow to raise their six children, Christian, William, Pauline, Amanda, Frederick, and Lydia. She remarried and moved to Williamston in Livingston County, Michigan, but some of the children returned to Washtenaw County to live.

George, the third son, was born in 1852, and when he married Elise Kaercher in 1876 settled on his father's farm, building a large brick home on Scio Church Road. They raised a family of four girls, Lydia, Ida, Emma, and Bertha, and a son George. George Aprill developed the family farm into a prosperous operation. He raised sheep and cattle, built a cider mill and jelly works, and sold milk, butter, produce, and wine to the people in Ann Arbor. He died in 1934 and Elise died in 1930.

William and George Aprill were prosperous and influential farmers, with real estate and political interests in the German community. They sponsored other German men and women wanting to come to America, giving them jobs and the opportunity to go on to make their way in this country.

Jacob and Magdalena Aprill both died in 1889, and are buried in the Salem Lutheran Cemetery on Scio Church Road. Jacob's father, who came about 1842 and died in 1869 at the age of 90, is also buried there.

This short history of the Aprill family in Washtenaw County has been prepared from reports of family members, Chapman's 1881 History of Washtenaw County, the 1891 Portrait and Biographical Album, and county and church records. The writer will welcome additional information on this family.

VOTER REGISTRATION, SCIO TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN, 1859-1860

The following list of voters of Scio Township, including Dexter Village, is only the first two years of registrations found in a township book now in the Dexter Area Museum, Dexter, Michigan. The registrations continue until 1882. Although in some alphabetical order, the dates are not always chronological. The number following the name refers to the section number as place of residence. "R." indicates removed - presumably this is the date removed from the roll; occasionally the name reappears in a year or so. "D." indicates Dead or Died - the date following is presumably the date recorded in this book. We wish to thank Nancy Van Blaricum, the genealogist for the Museum, for making this material available.

GRADUATES OF DEXTER HIGH SCHOOL, DEXTER, MICHIGAN, 1877-1903

Dexter High School, organized in 1877, had only one graduate in its first year. The school, with the community, has grown steadily, and especially in the last decades; 150 students will be graduated in 1987. The lists below are from a booklet, The History of Dexter written in 1952 by Mrs. Lillian Evers Wylie (1892-1972), a long-time teacher in Dexter High School.

Permission to use this material has been kindly given by Mr. Fred E. Wylie of Howell, Michigan, son of the author.

The asterisk, placed by the author, indicates graduate is deceased.
